

Now is the Time to See Florida Best

Hollywood-by-the-Sea has proved its claim of being Florida's All-year Resort City. Knowing that it is but necessary to visit its clean cool beach, we brought hundreds, that in time ran into thousands, down to Hollywood and demonstrated it. These half-skeptical visitors from the northland found first of all, a modern city, made and in-the-making, built up by its founder, Joseph W. Young, from virgin land and timberland, right in the choicest section of Florida's brilliant Southeast Coast. Few of them were prepared to find such a community as Hollywood; a community that conventional ideas had taught them to believe was given over in summer to tropical heat.

They found beautiful, brilliantly lighted coral streets, parks and parkways, bright business structures, schools and public buildings. They found a livable city with all the amusements, pleasures, and comforts of a seaside resort.

hued villas, and finally its clean glistening beach, set with palm trees and graced with the most beautiful bathing casino in the United States.

This spacious, artistically designed and brilliantly colored bathing palace with large swimming pool, wading pool, and galleries for spectators looking out over the broad blue expanse of the Atlantic Ocean, is the rendezvous of this whole section of Florida. Here cool refreshing breezes rustle the fronds of the coconut palms. Here on holidays, thousands roll in the surf of the Atlantic, or idle on the silvery sand of the beach.

Hollywood is the gem of Florida's jewel shore. This wonderful Southeast Coast of Florida, in summer, autumn, winter, spring, is always the same in its charm of life; in its amusements, relaxations and restfulness.

Three empty houses on south end of this street and two more soon to be as when winter comes, the Wilson Home and Smith places will be closed.

Wednesday, Chestina Twitchell and Flora Cummings visited at E. T. Perkins' Thursday, Mrs. Twitchell motored to Skowhegan, 40 miles, and returned, bringing her mother, Mrs. E. E. Twitchell, with her, who has been with Melissa Twitchell Giles these last four weeks. Mrs. Giles and young daughter are gaining strength and we are hoping to see them here before winter sets in.

Arthur Merrill, who has been working in New Hampshire through the summer, has returned to E. E. Twitchell's.

E. E. Twitchell, Mrs. E. E. Twitchell, Miss Chestina Twitchell, Flora Cummings, at Twitchell and family attended camp meeting at West Baldwin, Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Twitchell and Flora Cummings were at West Falls, Friday evening, at a prayer meeting held at Mr. Powers'.

Welcome Home
Mrs. Mary Allen, Flora Cummings, Chestina Twitchell, Mrs. Will Twitchell, Marjorie Twitchell, Mrs. Mildred Twitchell, Mary Twitchell, Mrs. Arthur Talbot and Mrs. Talbot met at Mrs. Chas. Stanton's in honor of Mrs. Etta Harriman, who recently returned from California, with Miss Mayberry, who is staying at Stanton's.

Mrs. Mildred Twitchell and Mr. Cummings had her as a dinner guest, serving ice cream and birthday cake with her. Mrs. Cummings had a lovely bouquet, box of sweets, cards, and three books, much to Mrs. Cummings' surprise, as the gathering was supposed to be entirely in honor of Mrs. Harriman, but the custom of observing the birthdays, held good and made the afternoon pass even jollier.

Refreshments of ice cream and fancy crackers were served, and work and music on the victrola enjoyed; a reading of the poem listened to, much social chat interchanged and finally the party broke up, leaving their best wishes with Mrs. Harriman and many thanks to Mrs. Stanton for making all this possible.

Mrs. Mary Allen accompanied Miss Chestina Twitchell to Mechanic Falls, Saturday, on a business trip.

A stray hound, dark brown, lame in left front leg, is wandering about here. It has a collar, but no name on it. The dog is foot sore and weary, by appearances, and nowhere to go.

Among those going to Lewiston are Mr. and Mrs. Freeland Cummings and Alvin Lovejoy.

Miss Chestina Twitchell started her fourth year in Norway High, Tuesday, boarding at home, going to and from school in her Ford.

Since writing that the Keller house was closed, I see a wash out on the line in the door yard, so seemingly I'm wrong again.

The rain we have had, though light, was very welcome. We notice that the crops on this street are doing very favorably, with those on high lands as to drought, and well indeed as to frost as Back street and some fields toward West Paris are dead, while the crops here still live and ripen.

ALLEN—WEST BETHEL
Rev. Carter Norlin will preach his last sermon next Sunday and goes to Boston, Monday morning to resume his studies. Florida Mason and Ernest Mundt went to Waterville, Monday, to enter Colby College.

NORWAY VICINITY

About Town

It is noticed, with great satisfaction, that when a check is cashed at the National Bank, clean, new bills are obtained. Around Washington no one sees any dirty. There should not be any in circulation. It is also noted how well the public is served by Fred B. Smith and Percy Y. Fogg—able and fine young men.

The members of the Norway and Paris Band, under the leadership of Frank Knapp, are a splendid company of musicians. Every one fills his part in the place to perfection. They never missed a Norway audience better than Monday evening at the Opera House. Old Kentucky Home, and Old Black Joe are old, old tunes, but they will never cease to thrill the heart.

The Governor and his lady made good impressions at the meeting Monday evening. It was their first appearance before a Norway audience. He, though not a spread eagle orator, dealing in platitudes, has something of moment to say and impresses one with his sincerity and ability to accomplish such for the people and the state. He will grow in public favor and future honors await. Keep your eye on Governor Brewster.

The little things in life are those that count. A cheerful countenance, a smile, a pleasant word, are of great account in our intercourse with others. Besides, they are some of the highest accomplishments of a real gentleman or lady. We are often troubled to find many little things that add to our comfort. In the days of the old country store, one could find about everything needed, now it is different, unless one is within reach of a department store. Wishing to obtain a certain small article, after much hunting, it was obtained at Leavitt's. A hunt after another small thing, brought me around to the same place. A third time, though not expecting to get it, as it was somewhat off the regular list of merchandise kept there, a bee line was made for the store, and surprise and pleasure, the article desired was obtained. At this point in my story, the writer was interrupted by the lady of the household asking what was being written about, and upon being informed said, "Oh, one can get all the little things required in the household, at Mrs. Ridlon's."

"No doubt of it," was the reply, "but one couldn't get a 'T. D. pipe.'"

"A clay pipe? What in mercy's name would you want of that?"

"To smoke cubes, mullen leaves and sweet fern for the catarrh."

"That may do, but you couldn't procure a night-cup at Leavitt's, could you?"

"With my experience, I wouldn't dare bet I couldn't, but anyhow I would bet he would know where it could be had."

Another matter has been made a subject of reflection and worthy of mention here. A lady of one of the first families, left her home and thrown upon her earnings and slender income for living, became worried over an investment, where the payment of a dividend had been stopped for a time. The pastor of her church interested himself in her behalf and did what he could to help her. A case of sickness among the lowly in his parish brought the tender ministrations of himself and his good wife. Another wished to buy a home for his little family, and at once the minister interested himself towards raising the money to make the first payment. A worthy member of his flock desiring to obtain a position to assist him to rise in the world. The minister is on hand to help him obtain the required influence to begin with. Is it any wonder that this able preacher of the gospel, splendid citizen, and thoroughly good man, is loved by, and strong with, his people—has no dissensions in his church and large congregations to hear what he has to say to them?

—C. F. Whitman.

"The children love the pies and cakes I bake in my Glenwood Oven"—

THE 20-inch-square oven of this Glenwood coal range gives you plenty of space for a heavy roast. Yet the whole oven is so evenly heated that you can depend on it to bake the lightest, flakiest pastries just right. The Glenwood Balanced Baking Damper leaves no chance for making mistakes and it cannot warp or stick.

A patent spring latch instantly releases the nickle edge-bands when you clean the range. With its all-over finish of gray or black porcelain enamel you need only wipe off this range with a damp cloth to make it sparkling clean.

This range burns either coal or wood and is made with or without a hot water reservoir attachment.

By Way of Comparison

From the Franklin Journal: "The Rambler has a firm conviction that the majority of the young people are as anxious to do the right thing as were the young people of a half century ago. Perhaps not so very easy to prove, but when you get right down into the heart of the matter, you will find there the spark of good, the desire to do right rather than wrong, the wish to keep away from evil. And those who go to the bad are more often influenced by others than parents, or their own desire. The Rambler has never been able to understand why it is that some persons are apparently so glad to see others going wrong. In the old days of 'free run' in this country, if a man had acquired the habit of drinking too much and turned about with a resolve to let it alone, there were men who would plan to get him to take another drink, and then become the fact that he had fallen. And there are some who act in the same way today. If anyone would give credit for good intentions, and help a little when one who is weak, falters, we would soon have a nation to be proud of. There is no question but that there are 'Certain Dangerous Tendencies' in our present American life. People are looking for thrills. The life of many is more or less a search for thrills, and the same thing today would be considered decidedly common. The public now wants something exciting to stir it to its full intensity. Modern inventions have come so fast, the telegraph, followed by all the other electrical discoveries, the improvement in machinery, in methods of doing business in everyday living, that the only way in which a young person can get a real thrill is in seeing or doing a thing which shocks something in their better nature. What is the remedy for all this? You tell."

Build Your Own Foundation

Napoleon was once mingling among his men and officers according to custom when he overheard a young officer complaining.
"Here I've been a lieutenant for four years, and I don't see any chance for advancement yet."
"Calm yourself," answered the great Corsican, "I was a lieutenant for seven years and yet I finally made use of my experience to get a slight advancement."
A similar statement might be attributed to many captains of industry, finance, or leaders in any worth while profession. The life of many is more or less a search for thrills, and the same thing today would be considered decidedly common. The public now wants something exciting to stir it to its full intensity. Modern inventions have come so fast, the telegraph, followed by all the other electrical discoveries, the improvement in machinery, in methods of doing business in everyday living, that the only way in which a young person can get a real thrill is in seeing or doing a thing which shocks something in their better nature. What is the remedy for all this? You tell."

AILMENTS OF YOUNG GIRLS

Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound School Teacher's Experience

Evanston, Wyoming—"A few years ago I had troubles every month such as girls often have, and would suffer awfully every time. I was teaching school, and it made it hard for me as I had to go to bed for two or three days. One day my mother suggested that I take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did, and it did wonders for me. In the course of a year I married and after my first baby was born I got up too soon and it caused a complication. This troubled me so that I could hardly walk or do my housework. I knew what the Vegetable Compound did for me before so I took it again. It strengthened me and now I have five little kids. The eldest is six, the baby is five months old and I have twin boys three years old and a boy of five years. I do all my own housework, washing and ironing, and I never felt better in my life. I owe my health to your wonderful medicine and I recommend it to all my friends."

Our Presidents

Our Presidents many, were wise and great, And were always striving on to their fate, With a will of the lion, And a soul like Zion.
First came General Washington, Who fought to the end and his battles won, That we today, might all be free, And helped us our duties, to ever see.
Next in line came one of great fame, Who is known to us all as John Adams by name, Who acted as a very strong superintendent, So that we all might be independent.
Then to Thomas Jefferson we were introduced, And he soon sent all the slackers to roost; For he was a man of great ambition, And needed men to fulfill his missions.
Then came Madison with great ability, Who ran our government with much nobility; And showed Old England in eighteen-twelve, How he managed affairs, so that they never fell.
Monroe was a man of Scotch descent, A man who, on his way, was terribly bent; But he showed the world a thing or two, And everyone said that he would do.
Next came Adams, John Quincy by name, Who never intended for the nation to go lame. While he had the power, the strength, and the will.
To ensure the passing of any bill.
Next came Jackson with eyes of gray, Who always, without fighting, had his say, For he showed the world a thing or two, And everyone said that he would do.
For of him everyone was greatly afraid, So they all kept still, and thus they saved, To see another take the throne.
Then Jackson, the hills and woods might roam, They were faithfully protected from all rebel bands.
We must now bow our heads to a man from the west, Who is always fighting, and never at rest; As down the lane walks General Harrison, Who for years has been at the head of his Garrison.
Next in line comes Mr. Tyler, Who, as a boy, was never a warrior, For one of a nature more gentle and calm, Who liked to work and roam on the farm.
Many a person liked James K. Polk, Who always much rather talked with folk, Than busy his brain over Government affairs, Or in the Great Ship seek to make repairs.
Zachary Taylor was a man very brave, Whose object was his country to save, Many a time has he put to flight, A wild-armed red man, who wanted to fight.
Millard Fillmore had a mind which said "Never Retreat," Which was so firm, and brave, and true, That he, the Whigs were able to defeat, And his work, he was able to see through.
Loyal man was Franklin Pierce, Whom everyone thought was something fierce; But just the same he held his ground, Until the end of his office came around.
James Buchanan did not meet with success, We must the best we must confess, He did his best to help us all, Therefore we should save him from a greater fall.
Abraham Lincoln was loved by all, Man and woman, great and small; "I must give the black men freedom," he said, And soon after, in a theatre, he met his fate. But he had given the slaves emancipation, Which later helped to save the nation.
And people this day remember him still, As they watch another, his place strive to fill.
Andrew Johnson took his place, But soon disaster looked him in the face, For he violated a law, was tried, and found guilty, Though he fought till the end with the best of his ability.
He then was impeached, But his soul was not reached, So he reached safely on, Hoping to see a brighter dawn.
Mr. Grant, a man from the South, Who was stoutly built, and light of mouth, Filled his place, both well and long, And soon America sang another song.
Next in order came Rutherford Hayes, Who, with his numerous, funny ways, Finished the work President Grant began, And always had time for some kind of fun.
James A. Garfield was watched by the world, As the line of his country he walked unfurled, As a man of power, independence and attainments.
He made, while in office, a great many arrangements, Which his exceptional powers had helped him to make.
Until Garfield's life was passed to take, Then came Chester Arthur, great and tall strong, To take his place, mid a sorrowful throng; And as near as he could, he continued the plans, For Garfield had made with own busy hands.
After him, came Grover Cleveland, Who met with success on every hand; Two terms he served, the ship of state, Across the tide at a glorious rate.
Benjamin Harrison came next in line, Who all his days, kept down the line, He ran a race with Mr. Cleveland, And had to give up to the opposite band.
Then came McKinley, calm and true, Who tried to make our troubles seem few, For he governed a war, and won with success; And America, with honors, he was able to bless.
But we could not always keep him, For Colcock had to come to a sin, Which would separate him, and his nation, Forever.
But his memory would be forgotten, never, Roosevelt, stalwart, firm and great, Came to save America from a sorrowful fate; For he seized the reins and things had to go, Always to glory, and never to woe.
Taft, happy, jolly and good, We have with us yet 'till he is old in manhood, And even now, he likes to watch, The games and battles of General Foch.
And thus America grew with the years, To be a nation without sorrow or tears; Full in nineteen hundred fourteen, she sent to France, A great horde of men, to Germany lands, Then America was old, very old, And large and powerful, though never bold, For he had his ship on the ship of state, Which carried him over the seas at a terrible rate.
For ten years later saw him go, To sea in a boat, that he himself must row, For "I was the Golden Ship of Jesus, Which had come, and he must leave us, Next came Mr. Harding, so good and fair, Who had his button down collar, and he was too good for a man of his size, And we soon lost another, who was true and true.
Now President Coolidge rules the State, Which yields to the world, money at a won. He is strong, courageous, brave and good, Who will help us to better manhood.
That we the Glories of Providence may share, When our time comes, to climb the Golden Stair."
—ANNETTE M. HAYDEN.

CANNED DINNERS
Formerly when a large family was going on a picnic or for a few days' outing, a day or two had to be devoted to preparing food. We of today pack in our little camp stove and carry our food along in tin cans. Canned dinners, from soup to nuts, were at one time put up in England for explorers. An Englishman going to the Amazon jungle for a year, ordered a supply of these ready-to-serve meals, but through some error, he received 365 dinners exactly alike, which grew rather monotonous before he got through. Be sure to select a good variety when ordering for a motor or camping trip. Let the grocer help you.

Toby and the Bear

L. J. Ames, of Locke's Mills, possesses a very old scrap book. Among the interesting things in this collection of poems, anecdotes, etc., is a bear story written by the late Dr. W. P. Lapham. Noah Tobey, the hero, was Mr. Ames' grandfather, and 18 years of age at the time of the fight.

The story taken from the scrap book is given in full. Mr. Ames suggests two corrections, first, the "Noah Tobey" settled in Greenwood prior to 1811, which is the date he moved into his farm house; secondly, he had three sons and four daughters.

The thrilling adventure follows:
Noah Tobey was one of the early settlers of Greenwood. He came into town in 1811 and took up a farm in the western part of the town, through which the old west country road was afterward built. Here he lived for many years, and here he died. The old west country road long ago disappeared as a public thoroughfare, and the old Tobey farm, since his death, has grown up to bushes and weeds, and we are not certain that the house where he lived and reared a family, is still standing. Mr. Tobey was an eccentric man, and we have heard many stories of his peculiar traits and habits, in our boyhood days. He was born at Kittery Point, in the year 1768 and lived there until he was fourteen years of age, when he was apprenticed to a master builder in the town of Topsham, by the name of Trueworthy.

It was an incident that happened during the years of his apprenticeship, that we propose to relate. The towns of Brunswick and Topsham presented a very different appearance ninety years ago, from that they do now. There were small settlements there then, and the mills at the falls; Bowdoin College had not then been chartered, and much of the territory north of the now thriving villages of Topsham and Brunswick, was covered with forests, where bears, wolves, and other wild beasts were often found.

Young Tobey frequently expressed a desire to see a wild bear, and often boasted to his fellow apprentices that he should chance to meet one, he would not run from him, but would fight him, if the bear would give him an opportunity. Probably this was mere idle talk, and doubtless Tobey, under the impression that his boasted courage would be soon put to the test.

A short time after this as he was returning home from Brunswick—we have heard it said that he was returning to work—and he was returning to work—and he passed through a piece of woods, and as he came to the top of a short but steep hill, he was confronted by a large bear of the black variety, who stood in the narrow path, directly before him. The white-faced bear is always ready to fight, and in this instance immediately stood up on his hind legs, and with a snarl and a rushing cry, advanced toward Tobey, who for a moment stood spellbound with astonishment and fear. He soon rallied however and took in the situation in a moment.

He must either turn and run, in which case he felt quite certain of his success, or he must pursue and overtake him, or he must accept the challenge and fight the bear in his own way. Tobey was a young man, spry and agile as a young panther. So he sprang toward the bear, which was doubtless somewhat of his guard by this unexpected movement on the part of Tobey, and they fell together to the earth, the bear falling underneath. Tobey immediately rolled over and the bear followed him, when he was thrown again, and the third time in the same manner. At the fourth round the bear threw Tobey, and let him get up, placing his huge paw on the bear's arm, between the elbow and the wrist, in such a manner as to lacerate the muscles in a fearful manner. He now considered this victory as a hard-earned one, and he was trying to get up, with a mouse, before proceeding to attack him with his teeth. Tobey's presence of mind did not desert him and with his right hand he took a small knife from his pocket, and opening the blade with his teeth, he thrust it into the bear's belly. This was a flank movement which he did not expect, and he immediately released Tobey, who drew his knife towards him, cutting so large an opening that the bear sprang over him, his exposed entrails were dragged across Tobey's face. The bear went about four rods and died. Tobey was terribly injured, the muscles of the left arm were torn from their attachments at the elbow, and hung down over his wrist. In the struggle the bear was all the while injured, and his body scratched and lacerated in a shocking manner. He managed however, to crawl to his boarding place, and a party of workmen went out and brought him in the bear. Tobey's courage and skill in the bear, who had made good his boast, but it came near costing him his life, and covered him with scars which he carried to the grave.

In 1789, Mr. Tobey was married to Miss Abigail Gilpatrick, of Biddeford, and as we have before stated, went to Greenwood in 1811. His children consisted of one son, who died several years ago, and of several daughters still living. Mr. Tobey died in 1849. After he became an old man, he frequently related his adventure with the bear, and always boasted that when he rolled over the top of the hill, he was "top half the time."

Studebaker Standard Six Coach, $1,320.00 Delivered in Norway, Maine.

One-Profits Value Unit-Built Construction

Make Studebakers Bargains in Quality

BECAUSE Studebaker builds for Studebaker cars all bodies, all engines, all axles, chassis, differentials, steering gear, springs, gear box, gray iron castings and drop forgings—it is possible to give purchasers two advantages:

1. A price advantage. Because Studebaker eliminates extra profits which all other manufacturers (except Ford) must pay to outside parts or body makers. Thus Studebaker is able to use steel of extra toughness, fine northern white ash and hard maple, wool upholstery, plate glass, painstaking workmanship to precision standards, and extra equipment, such as gasoline gauge, clock, stop light, etc.—yet charge no more than competing cars.

2. A construction advantage. Because all parts are not only designed to constitute one harmonious unit, but are Unit-Built in Studebaker plants. Using built as a unit, every Studebaker functions as a unit. This results in years longer life, scores of thousands of miles of excess transportation, greater riding comfort, minimum repair costs and, finally, higher resale value.

The net of it is this: the one-profit Studebaker with its unit-built construction offers you a bargain in quality.

There are others in our general price field who also build quality cars. But for models that are at all comparable their prices are higher.

Others, who once built quality cars, have made material sacrifice in order to secure superficial price advantages. These cars are good value for the man or woman who wants that kind of a car. But if he wants a bargain in quality there is only one answer—Studebaker.

Consider, for instance, the Standard Six Coach, illustrated above. It has wool upholstery; plate glass; fine trim to hide all ticks; heavy, ornamental hardware; clock; gasoline gauge on dash; automatic windshield cleaner; stop light; locks on ignition; steering gear, door and spare carrier all operated by a single key.

Slam the door and the sound says "quality." Swing on the door. Run one wheel up on the curb and note how the door still open and close. Sit on the firm, heavy fenders. Try the steering gear. See how easily it handles the full-size balloon tires. Test the comfort of the deep rear seat. Its genuine wool upholstery covers two layers of washed, quilted cotton, one layer of genuine curled hair and extra long springs closely held together by small coil springs.

Run the engine—the most powerful in any car of this size and weight, according to the ratings of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. Come in and see this bargain in quality—the lowered price closed car ever sold by Studebaker.

PROPOSED BRIDGE NEEDED LINK FOR A MAINE HIGHWAY

Tolls Will Pay Costs of Structure Across Kennebec River

WILL NOT ADD A PENNY TO TAXES

Maine to Vote on the Bridge Question Next

SALIENT FACTS REGARDING BRIDGE AT BATH
It is to be a toll bridge.
It cannot cost more than $3,000,000.
It will eliminate operating the State ferry.

It will eliminate the building of new boats and replacing slips in the near future at a great cost to the State.
Being a toll bridge, its receipts will pay interest charges, maintenance and retire the bonds as they become due.
It will not add one penny to the tax of any citizen of Maine and it will keep open 24 hours daily a link in the State highway now closed 12 to 18 hours per day depending on the season of the year, during the hours the ferries are not operating.

On September 14, next Monday, the voters of Maine will go to the polls and vote upon three measures:
A bond issue of $6,000,000 for continuing the work on Maine's present system of State highways so well begun.
The granting to Dexter P. Cooper and his associates, the rights, so far as Maine can grant them, to build a giant power station at Passamaquoddy Bay, at a cost of nearly, if not quite, $100,000,000, with the State of Maine will not be asked to finance in any way.

A bond issue, not to exceed $3,000,000 for building a toll bridge across the Kennebec River at Bath which, as Governor Brewster in his recent speech at Rockland said, "the bridge will pay for itself in a much shorter time than was contemplated in the figures which the Legislature considered last winter."

Those who live in the coast counties, and those from the more inland counties whose business takes them to that section of Maine, know the need of a bridge at Bath.

These people, who know the conditions as they exist, do not need to be told why there is such a demand for this bridge. But there are many who do not know these facts. They do not know that from midnight to six in the morning, even in the summer, there is no ferry operating. They do not know that for many months in the year there is no ferry between six at night and six in the morning.

They do not realize that this great State highway is closed to travel 12 to 18 hours out of every 24, according to the season, so that to get across in a car one must travel 29 miles up the river to the bridge at Gardiner. If they did realize this condition, and if they would consider what they would want Maine to do for them if a stretch of their own highway was closed this way, there would not be a single "No" vote cast on this matter in the State of Maine next Monday.

Some labor under the impression that this bridge will be burdened to the State or increase their taxes. This is absolutely not so. The tolls from patrons, with the rental to be paid by the State Central Railroad, and receipts from other corporations such as water and electric power and light, will amply care for the cost of the bridge and its maintenance.

With the State cut in two at such a point it is almost impossible to develop the great stretch of territory between the coast as it should be. Where there are hundreds of summer homes and camps there should be thousands. Where there are many deserted farms there should be thriving and prosperous agricultural industry carried on. Where there should be reasonable freight and passenger traffic between the eastern section of the coast and the western section, there is now a break so pronounced that many industries are hampered and unable to expand to their greatest advantage. Tourists, disgusted with the delay and inconvenience, frequently avoid this obsolete ferry system by taking their tours into other sections of New England.

When this Kennebec bridge matter was before the Maine Legislature last winter there were several hearings at which competent engineers and contractors appeared and stated that the bridge could be built for the sum named. Following these hearings the members of the Legislature visited Bath and made a personal inspection and investigation that they might get first hand knowledge of the situation. They returned to Augusta and when the matter came up in the House and Senate not a voice was raised in opposition to it and not a vote was cast against it, the bill receiving an unanimous passage.

If this was a matter that would add to the burden of the taxpayer in the section of the State, one can readily understand why some persons, in a section not affected by the conditions outlined, might decline to help along his neighbors to avoid added expense to himself. But, in a case like this, where there is no additional burden to be imposed upon any taxpayer, it is inconceivable that any great number of Maine people will deny to their neighbors this opportunity to better their condition or to refuse to help along the great Develop Maine Movement which is now in full swing in the State.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank McCloud and daughter, and Lettie West, were week end guests at Charlie Child's.

Miss Ruth Curtis has gone to Southport, to teach school.

Ray taxpayer, it is inconceivable that any great number of Maine people will deny to their neighbors this opportunity to better their condition or to refuse to help along the great Develop Maine Movement which is now in full swing in the State.

Margaret Rowe is visiting at the home of H. D. McAlister.

Wilma Pierce and children spent the week end in Norway.

Donald McAlister was at home over the holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Pierce called on Florence Pierce and family, Monday night.

Plants for the Lawn
In the choice of plants for the lawn, says an expert in that line of home and city beautification, a few special rules are of interest and value. Choose hardy plants. Use dogwoods, honeysuckle, spruces, pinebark, etc., for shrubs; woodbine, Dutchman pipe, honeysuckle, clematis, for vines, and hardy perennial flowers for the borders, then add maples, spruces, elms, etc., in suitable places to complete the plan. Plant in the spring rather than in the fall.

Say Neighbor:

When you go to the polls on Sept. 14, will you mark a cross in the "Yes" square over the referendum question regarding the bond issue for a bridge across the Kennebec river at Bath?

This will be a toll bridge and as Governor Brewster said in his recent Rockland speech:

"THESE FIGURES ALSO INDICATE SO MUCH THE MORE FORCEFULLY THE NEED OF A BRIDGE ACROSS THE KENNEBEC AT BATH AND ALSO THE ASSURANCE THAT THE BRIDGE WILL PAY FOR ITSELF IN A MUCH SHORTER TIME THAN WAS CONTEMPLATED IN THE FIGURES WHICH THE LEGISLATURE CONSIDERED LAST WINTER."

NOTE THE FACT that it is a TOLL BRIDGE and as the Governor says "WILL PAY FOR ITSELF." Tolls and receipts will pay interest charges, maintenance and retire the bonds at maturity. Help us eliminate the obsolete ferries with their vexatious delays and to keep the Atlantic Highway open 24 hours a day instead of 12 to 18, as now, depending upon the season.

IT WILL NOT ADD A PENNY TO YOUR TAX. WILL YOU HELP?
